

*It is a pleasure to present to you our wine list. We have attempted to select the most interesting and drinkable
examples of a wide range of wine.*

February 2008

Bordeaux

Bordeaux, along the river Gironde on the West Coast of France. An area in an almost perfect vinicultural situation. Merlot and Cabernet Sauvignon are the main grown grapes for these spectacular red wines.

Rhône

Famous for its full, fiery and spicy-rich red wines which grow and ripen along the riverbanks of the Rhône valley. The valley covers a large area of southern central France from Vienne into the heart of Provence.

Loire

In winemaking terms, the Loire valley is best imagined as a long ribbon with crisp white wines at either end and fuller wines of all types in the middle. It is the home of Sauvignon Blanc, Chenin Blanc and Cabernet Franc.

Burgundy

Say Burgundy and most people think of the famous wines of the Côte de Nuits and Côte de Beaune. But Burgundy in fact stretches from Chablis, with its outstanding white wines, in the north on past Dijon and Beaune, through Chalonnais, Mâconnais and Beaujolais, ending not far from Lyon.

USA/California

America's Golden State has always been a natural home for classic grape varieties and since the early 1980s, when many of its winemakers began to reject overblown styles in favour of a balance between natural power and finesse, California has produced an abundance of world-class wines.

Vintage Port

"It should feel like liquid fire in the stomach... it should burn like inflamed gunpowder... should have the tint of ink... it should be like the sugar of Brazil in sweetness and the spices of the India in aromatic flavour"

Written in 1754 by the agents for the Association of Port Wine Shippers.
